

Discourses on Neohumanist Education

✘ “Teachers must bear in mind that their students - whether adolescents, youths, old people or actual children - are, to them, all just children of different ages; and that they themselves are children like their students. If teachers distance themselves from their students or continually try to maintain a forced gravity, they will not be able to establish sweet, cordial relations with their students. The free and frank exchange of ideas is simply not possible unless a feeling of mutual affection is established.”

“It must be the teachers’ responsibility to impart knowledge, teach restraint in social life, and give instruction about all the various aspects of collective endeavour, but the parents will have to take on most of the responsibility for the moral and spiritual education of the child.” Shrii P.R. Sarkar

216 pp. paperback 8.5 wide x 11 tall ISBN: 978-8-172-52128-8 Price: $16.0

Your order

Your cart is empty